Master of Social Work

About the Program

The Master of Social Work program is based on an analytical and critical approach to social work practice, and to knowledge related to practice. The program examines the structural context of personal and social problems and of social work practice itself. The structural context refers to the interaction between individuals and the social, political, and economic dimensions of society. The program focuses on the development of social work practices that change the interactions between people and structural contexts.

The curriculum is organized into two concentrations:

- Direct Intervention: with individuals, families, small groups, and communities; and
- Social Administration and Policy: an examination of the political, economic, and social context within which social policy is made.

Ph.D. Social Work

About the Program

The substantive focus of the PhD program is theory, application and practice of structural social work and an in-depth understanding of social justice and human rights and the underlying structural issues.

Structural social work understands social problems as embedded in structural factors and posits that: social change occurs only through social and political action; the structures of domination are consciously/unconsciously reproduced through people's everyday activities; the link between structure and agency is dialectical and that therefore intervention occurs simultaneously at the individual and societal levels. Research is encouraged in social organization, social policy, social practices or links among all three.

The PhD in Social Work normally will be taken on a full-time basis. The core course work and qualifying exam are completed in the first 12 months of the program and are designed to assist students in locating and developing their research projects.

The curriculum is focused solely on the field of structural social work. The course work and qualifying exam must be completed in the first 12 months of the program and are designed to assist students in locating and developing their research projects.

Academic Regulations

- See the General Regulations section of this Calendar
- Candidates must obtain a grade of B- or higher in each course and Satisfactory on the PhD thesis and its oral defence.

Admission Requirements

There are three principal criteria for admission.

- Completion of an MSW at an accredited program in Social Work (Canadian Association for Social Work Education or equivalent), or a similarly accredited BSW and a closely related graduate degree. An average of A- or better at the Masters level is normally required.
